In a Bicycle

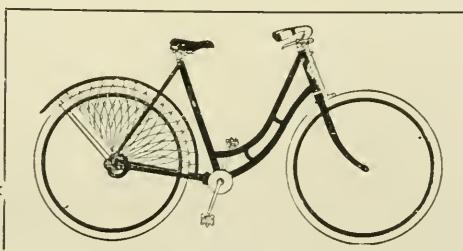

THE essential qualities are efficiency, ease of running, durability. These are found in the highest degree in the Columbia Bevel-Gear Chainless. The running gear practically takes care of itself. Weather and road conditions do not affect its absolute uniformity of action. Columbia and Hartford Chain Wheels show the greatest advance in chain wheel construction. The driving mechanism, consisting of specially cut sprockets and 3-16 inch hardened pin chain, affords better results than any of the many other chain gears submitted to the ordeal of our DEPARTMENT OF TESTS. See our catalogue.

O the Sixth Annual Report of Haverford Athletics must be given the credit of a radical departure from the exclusiveness of former years, in the introduction of special college and class departments, edited by student representatives from the various classes.

The purpose of this innovation is to render the Annual more truly indicative of college life and thus a substitute for the annual year book published by many of our sister institutions.

The attitude of these class historians has been most cordial and enthusiastic, their work most cheerfully performed, yet at the same time independently—hence all credit or criticism belongs to them alone.

The editor would express his gratitude for the photographic assistance of Messrs. Chase, Cope and Carter, and for the preparation of sketches by Messrs. Burdette, DeCou, Walenta, Thomas and others. He would further express his gratification at the vigorous and healthy tone of Haverford Athletics as evidenced by the general success of the year. May the Haverford "H" long hold its proud position in College circles.

—SEASON—

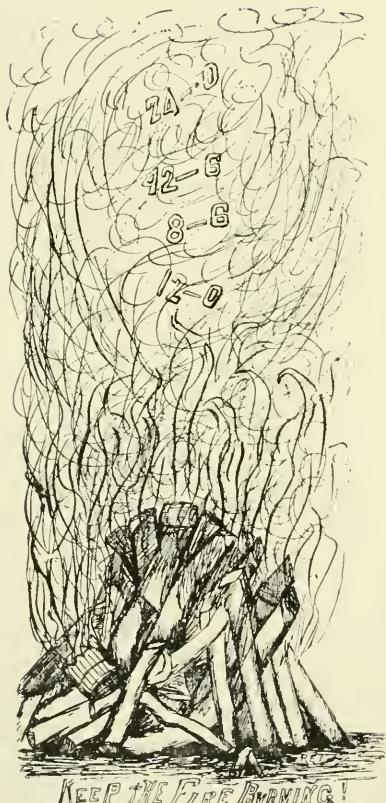

The Football Season of 1898 proved on the whole a satisfactory one to Haverford, although the total of points was not as high proportionately as in many former years. Two of the games played were of paramount importance, one by reason of its association with Founders' Day, and the other forming a link in the long chain of competitive contests with our sister college, Swarthmore. These two games were gloriously successful. The large and representative company of Haverfordians must have carried away a glowing picture of Haverford Football from the 52 to 0 game on Founders' Day with St. John's College, and the joyous faces of Haverford Alumni, after viewing the Swarthmore game, attested the universal satisfaction.

HAVERFORD GYMNASIUM TEAM.

Much interest has centered in the work of practically the first organized Gymnasium Team Haverford has ever placed in the field.

School exhibitions, all creditable, were given at Penn Charter, Friends' Select School, Germantown Academy and Temple College, while a regularly advertised exhibition was given in conjunction with the Banjo and Mandolin Clubs, at the Wayne Opera House before a good audience.

The climax of the season occurred in the first dual gymnastic contest with Rutgers College, in which the latter college won by two points, though Haverford led in the number of first places by a score of 5 to 3. Two representatives of the team were sent to the Intercollegiate contest in New York. The results of the Haverford-Rutgers meeting, with contestants, were as follows :

HORIZONTAL BAR—Haverford, C. J. Allen, '00; H. H. Jenks, '00. Rutgers, E. H. Sarles, '99; L. G. Knipe, '02. Haverford, first; Rutgers, second.

CLUB SWINGING—Haverford, H. H. Lowry, '99; E. R. Richie, '99. Rutgers, A. H. Shearer, '99; M. Lipman, '00. Haverford, first; Rutgers, second.

TUMBLING—Haverford, S. W. Mifflin, '00; H. H. Jenks, '00. Rutgers, E. H. Sarles, '99; C. L. Williamson, '02. Rutgers, first; Haverford, second.

HIGH JUMP—Haverford, E. B. Conklin, '99; W. W. Justice, Jr., '00. Rutgers, J. W. Thompson, '99; A. P. Brokaw, '00. Haverford, first; Rutgers, second.

SHOT PUT—Haverford, E. D. Freeman, '00; W. W. Hall, '02. Rutgers, F. Decker, Sem.; F. E. Foerster, '02. Haverford, first and second places.

FENCING—Haverford, H. S. Drinker, '00; W. W. Justice, '00. Rutgers, C. E. Case, '00; F. G. VonGehren, '99. Rutgers, first and second places.

FENCE VAULT—Haverford, H. H. Jenks, '00; A. R. Yearsley, '01. Rutgers, J. W. Thompson, '99; A. P. Brokaw, '00. Rutgers, first and second places.

PARALLEL BARS—Haverford, H. H. Jenks, '00; E. C. Rossmassler, '01. Rutgers, R. W. Leary, '02; C. L. Williamson, '02. Haverford, first; Rutgers, second.

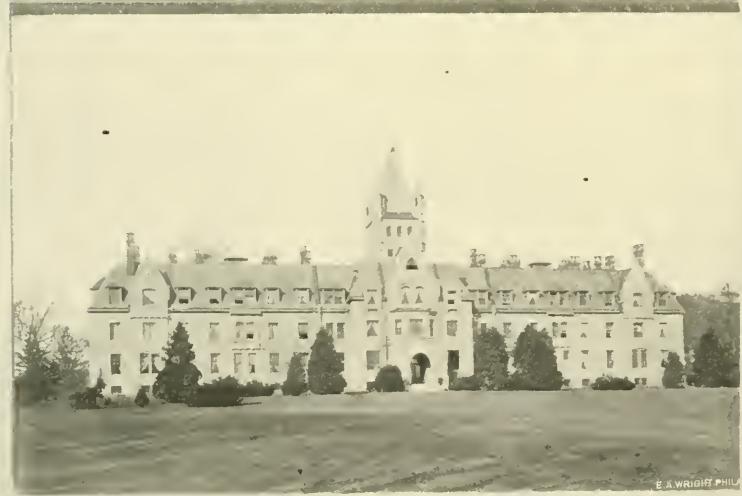

WRESTLING—Haverford, W. W. Hall, '02; W. H. Grant, '02. Rutgers, W. E. McMahon, '00; D. F. Burnett, '01. Points divided equally.

THE CRICKET SEASON

Up to the present writing—May 23d—the first eleven has played only two completed innings, and has done more fielding than batting. But it seems to be quite up to the average of recent Haverford teams. Hinchman and Sharpless have done the most consistent scoring, while Allen, Patton, Carter, and Justice have each played at least one good innings. Sharpless has been the most reliable bowler. The second is weaker than usual, especially in bowling. The third is above the average.

The annual match with the University of Pennsylvania was played at Manheim on Saturday, May 20th. The wicket was soft, and the scoring slow, but the game was very interesting throughout. The University won the toss, and batted first. For the fifth year in succession one of the Hinchman family made the top score for Haverford.

HAVERFORD CRICKET TEAM—EARLY SEASON

HAVERFORD vs. HARVARD.

The annual match with Harvard University was played at Longwood, on Saturday, May 27th. Haverford won the toss, and batted first. Three good wickets went down in the first over, and the side was out for 38.

In its second innings the team made 105. J. A. Lester, A. G. Scattergood and R. C. Brown—three old Haverfordians—did good work on the Harvard team, the first-named taking 7 wickets for 15 runs.

HENRY SANDWITH DRINKER, Class Historian

HE Class of 1900 began the year 1898-99 with a large falling off in membership. Not only was this decrease a numerical one, but the position and ability of the men who had left was such as to make the Class feel their loss very seriously indeed. Murphy, our Freshman President, the author of our Sophomore play, left us at the call for volunteers for the service of his country, and has since been appointed by the President to a cadetship at West Point; Marshall, our Sophomore President, in May, '98, left to study law in Boston; Stuart, the leader of the College Mandolin Club and composer of the music in our Sophomore play was also unable to return for his Junior year. Besides these three most prominent men there were Seager, Freedley, Chamberlain, Walter, and Wendell. None of these had held any official position in the Class, but each had his own place which could be filled by him and him alone, and from which each is sadly missed by his classmates.

Thus it was that the Class began the year, smaller perhaps in numbers, but fired with the same old class and college spirit which almost "fired" them all when they were tender Freshmen. The first thing of importance for the Class to look forward to was the football game with '99. 1900 was thoroughly equipped with old clothes, indeed, our doughty Captain Moorhouse had several times practiced the signals which had been mastered with great effort by one or two of his faithful followers when the college captain—a Senior by the way—made up his mind that such a game would interfere with the regular team's work, so it was declared off.

At the glorious victory over Swarthmore, on November nineteenth, 1900 was represented on the regular team by Mifflin, Freeman, Sharpless and Drinker, with Lloyd and Hallett as substitutes. Thus seven men from 1900, including Manager Eshleman, received their "H" at the end of the year.

Meanwhile the class officers for the year were elected as given above. Shortly after this President Cope with two other men from the Class laid before the Freshmen the Honor system as adopted by 1900 in its own Freshman year, strongly recommending it to them as having been most successful during the two years in which it had been tried, and it was finally adopted by 1902. We inaugurated the Honor system at the mid-year examinations in our Freshman year and found it so very satisfactory that we decided to try to persuade succeeding classes to adopt it. With 1901 we were unsuccessful, but we trust that now that 1902 has adopted it, it may eventually become an established custom at Haverford, as we believe this system to be of decided benefit to the college.

In the inter-class debate with '99 the 1900 team, consisting of Bell, Cope and C. H. Carter, with Lutz as alternate, was victorious in a very interesting contest. Bell's work was especially commendable, but the whole team deserved the just praise which they received, and the Class was proud to have such men to represent her. The debate with 1901 for the championship of the college failed to come off, for some unexplainable reason, and so for a second time during the year 1900 was deprived of her rightful prey. In the Loganian-Philomathian debate, on March 10th, Bell did honor to his class and to his college in contributing so largely toward defeating this strong Pennsylvania Society.

In the Inter-Class Gymnasium contest the Class scored another victory, with 32 points to its credit against 13 by 1901. On the regular Gymnasium team the Class was represented by Captain Jenks, Mifflin, Allen and Manager Moorhouse.

After the mid-years the all-engrossing topic of interest to every Junior is the Junior Reception, which takes place in the middle of April. So it was that from February until the Spring Recess whenever a Junior was slightly deficient in a recitation you could always anticipate to a certainty his reply to the inquiring preceptor. He was in town on class business, he had a rehearsal of Junior exercises. A committee for the Class, composed of ten men, was chosen soon after Christmas and Messrs. Burdette and Bell were entrusted with the enviable task of composing a production to last forty-five minutes, serious and intellectual in character, but still full of plenty of things to make the people laugh—"a lamentable tragedy mixed full of pleasant mirth," as it were. They introduced a scene from the Old Logonian of 1850, with anachronisms, but by April 12th the Old Logonian, as well as the lamentable tragedy part, was decidedly in the minority. It consisted for the most part of local hits, several members of the faculty figuring prominently. The committee, however, did its best to bar out all places which it thought might in any way offend any one and trusts that no such offense was taken.

After the performance, which was pronounced very successful, the guest adjourned to the campus, which was tastefully decorated with lanterns, and also to Founder's Hall, where refreshments were served in the dining-room. The two mathematical rooms were relieved of their prosaic and numerical appearance by articles from the rooms in Barclay Hall, for which the Class extends its hearty thanks to all the owners.

The attendance at this fête was far larger than at any previous one. Eight hundred invitations were sent out and more than seven hundred persons accepted. The beautiful evening enabled most of these to be present, thus taxing the new hall to its utmost capacity.

The Junior Exercises Committee was as follows :

Francis Reeve Cope, Jr., Chairman.

William B. Bell.

Robert J. Burdette, Jr.

Henry Sandwith Drinker.

Edward Dale Freeman.

Walter Swain Hinckman.

Horace Howard Jenks.

William Warner Justice, Jr.

Abram Gibbons Tatnall.

Frank Mercur Eshleman, Secretary.

We publish a picture of the Class Cricket Team which won the championship of the college under the able leadership of W. W. Justice, Jr., beating the Senior's score of 148 by two runs and seven wickets, 65 of which were made by Allen and 20 by Mifflin, who were both batting splendidly when the stumps were drawn. Sharpless also had 42 to his credit when he was bowled by Mellor. In due time this team met the Freshmen glorying in their victory over the Sophomores and defeated them by seven wickets, thus winning the college championship. On the college cricket eleven the Class was represented by Hinckman, Sharpless, Allen, Mifflin, C. H. Carter, and Justice, the last of whom also managed the team through a very successful season.

The track was the only field in which the Class did not carry off first honors, for here was felt sadly the loss of Ross and Marshall, who had gained so many points for the Class in former years. In the Spring Sports 1900 finished second to 1902 by a score of $45\frac{1}{2}$ to $40\frac{1}{2}$.

The Class is soon to enter on its last year in college; three years of Haverford have nearly passed. Sometimes these years seem very long, sometimes very short. Long if we go back, step by step, thinking of all of the many good times we have had here, of the afternoons we have spent under the shady maple trees on the smooth soft grass in the places we love so dearly, of the fellows we have come to know and trust so well, but short if we go back at one leap to the time when we first came together, when we saw for the first time the ones who were to occupy so much of our lives and so much of our hearts in time to come, when we met together in the little room in dear old Barclay Hall, and for the first time stood shoulder to shoulder, to strive and fight for our Class and for our college, to work for the glory and honor of 1900 and for Haverford. And now we hope to hold together still as we have done, and to go down through our lives having in our hearts the dear old song :

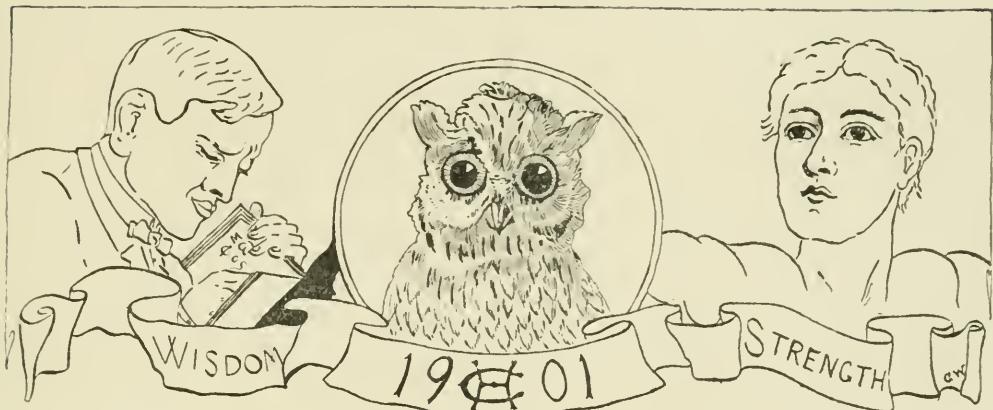

We'll stand together for nineteen hundred
Bound by ties that can ne'er be sundered.
All through life we'll loyal be
To Haverford nineteen hundred,
And all through life we'll loyal be
To Haverford nineteen hundred.

YE SOPHOMORIC CHRONICLE

Howard V. Bullinger, Historian

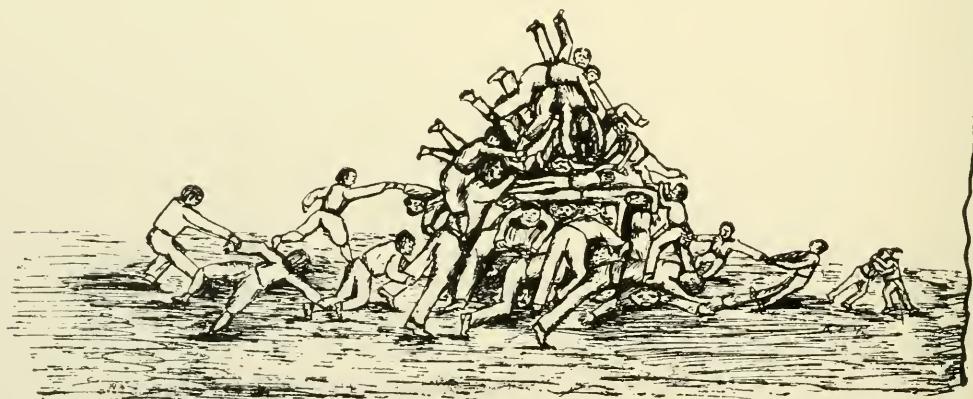

Now we all enjoy the stories of "the good old days" at Haverford! It is a genuine pleasure for us to gather in a circle round a gray-haired Alumnus of the sixties and hear him tell of some of the pranks and capers of dormitory life in which he had a part. But we are often disappointed to find that his stock of reminiscences will last for only one or two evenings. After this he begins again with the first story and repeats the cycle. After patiently hearing an Alumnus tell for the seventh time how he had painted Farmer Blank's cow with a coat of red and black, certain sagacious Sophomores protested against this repetition. They were answered by the assertion that when they became Alumni they too would have so few stories at their tongue's end that they would be forced to repeat those few to the weariness of their friends. Alarmed at such a prospect these Sophomore wiseacres put their heads together, and after consulting the oracles, devised a plan by which they might escape becoming public nuisances as tellers of twice-told tales. This plan was the stupendous one of writing a class-history. "A class-history," said they, "will furnish a fund of stories large enough to last the most garrulous of us a lifetime, and besides, we shall be able to maintain a reputation for veracity by referring to it for evidence, and by inviting all to behold the corroborating ink when we have finished our most harrowing tale."

Such is the reason for the existence of this, the initial installment of our class history. We beg our readers to be gracious and to remember that it is designed to be a book of reference, and books of reference, every college man knows, are intensely (?) interesting.

When the goddess of learning tossed us together into Barclay Hall for the first time we found that she had thrown us into a hostile land. Between the upper class-men and the Faculty our minds and bodies were hacked well-nigh to pieces. It was during this trying time that some of the fellows met with misfortunes whose effects have been lasting. Brown, for example, had his tongue removed by Sophomores for over-much talking and since then has been known as the "Wise Man," because he says nothing, having, as we suspect, nothing to say. Neilson, also, during that time was told by the Professors that he needed plenty of sleep and now Neilson sleeps during Greek and Latin recitations. First impressions are lasting and our first impressions have remained with us. We were impressed, first of all, with the dignity of the Sophomore Class. This impression is very strong with us now. Sophomores are and of right ought to be the lords of creation, hence their dignity. We never quite understood the reason for this superiority of Sophomores until we had passed from the greenness of Freshman year to the Eleusinian mysteries of Sophomore year. Now we have imbibed along with the Differential Calculus and Periodic Law a true conception of the Sophomore's Place as the pillar of the universe. We were not altogether happy at the change, for we lost some of our class-mates during Freshman year. Frank Chase and Harold F. Babbitt, two of our best football men and athletes, left us in June. Moore and Macomber, both good men, were with us only a year.

"YE CANE RUSH"

Langfeld, our prize orator, said his farewell and left us bereft of his silvered speech. Grayson, our only other senator, departed to make a reputation in the law. Charles Allen, Ed. Off, "Cabby" Zook and Evan Randolph, Vice-President of the class, also sought other fields for the exercise of their tremendous powers and deprived us of their services.

It was, therefore, with an amputated feeling that we got together this Fall of 1898 and called the roll to find so many missing. It was not all sorrow, however, for we were fortunate in receiving into our class at this time five new men, each of them an element of strength in one or more ways. Of these men Arthur R. Yearsley, W. H. Wood and J. L. Winslow were especially desirable athletes. During the year they have represented their class ably in the inter-class athletic contests.

Upon the whole we thought our Sophomore Class was just the class to introduce the Freshmen to the joys and sorrows of life at Haverford. We began by showing the infant-class how to win a cane-rush. This is an open and fair athletic contest, and let me say just here that the Class of 1901 has put its mark of disapproval upon hazing. No Freshmen were frightened into subservience to the powers by a night-prowling band of Sophomores. The new-comers were not hazed. The rules were read to them and with a kindly admonition they were left in quiet. The classes that follow us should follow likewise our precedent and not resort to hazing for pastime or pleasure.

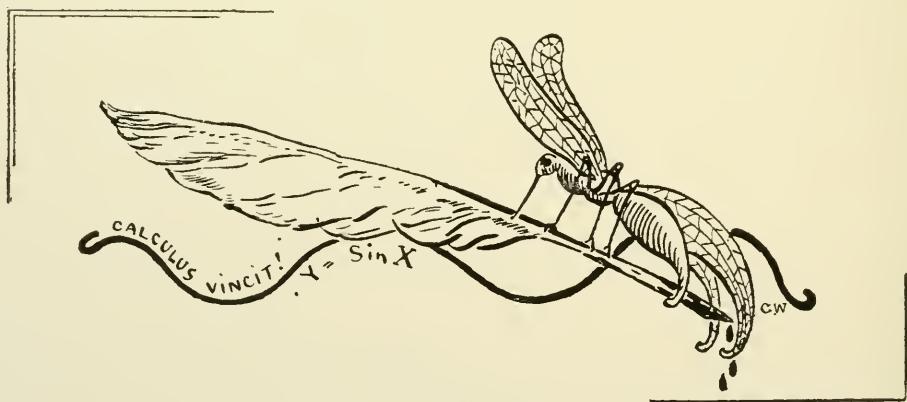

In the contests of the year on the athletic field 1901 was fairly successful, as a glance at the records in the "Athletic Annual" will show. In debating we won from the Freshmen, but the final debate against the Juniors was declared off through a misunderstanding in the arrangements. The intellectual standing of the class is higher than the traditional Sophomore standing. Even during football and cricket seasons the general class-average was fairly high.

The social event of the Sophomore year is the Sophomore entertainment. This year the entertainment was given on April 7, in the Casino of the Merion Cricket Club and was a comic opera in three acts called "The Satrap," the words and music of which were written by John Howard Redfield, '99. The play dealt with the adventures of a Haverford cricket team touring in the far east. The caste included E. B. Conklin, G. J. Walenta, L. W. De Motte, F. W. Sharp, F. Howson, A. S. Cookman, W. H. Kirkbride, E. C. Rossmässler, R. H. Patton, E. Y. Brown, Jr., W. L. Neilson, W. W. Woodward, W. Mellor and others. The entertainment was successful in every way and drew forth applause again and again from the large audience which crowded the hall.

In the middle of the Sophomore year a choice is offered to students between calculus and biology. A division of the class between these two subjects was the cause of much good-natured banter. The Calculus students "jollied" the Bug-ology students and vice versa. Whenever the studious Kirkbride saw Rossmässler poring over his calculus notes the Kirkbride would "burble" and gloat, saying that biology was a thing one got by instinct and no studying was required. But when examinations in Biology came along the student Rossmässler would sing under Kirkbride's window of the joys of out-door life while Kirkbride wrestled above in agony with "coleoptera" and hymenoptera and other beasts. The biology crowd used to go on long tiresome walks and capture pet turtles which were kept in the bath-tub on the third floor. Neilson once was nearly drowned in trying to jump across a raging torrent about six inches deep and three feet wide. He never praised biology after this event. Fred Sharp, too, was well-nigh a subject for a coroner after an irate farmer had chastised him for stealing milk on one of these scientific rambles. Yet in spite of these harrowing experiences and hair-breadth escapes they declared that the calculus boys were creatures to be pitied. Ah, what a false notion! How we did pity those biology enthusiasts on a rainy morning when they plashed through the mire while we in solid comfort dozed in Barclay Hall.

But the Sophomore year draws to a close and we shall soon put off the frivolity of Freshmen-trainers and become members of that serenely august assemblage of "upper" classmen. Those of us who elected biology, the science of life, may know perhaps more about living, but those of us who chose calculus as an antidote for sleep know what it is to suffer, and suffering, say the philosophers, deepens character. We go in for depth of character. So farewell, and "calculus vincit."

FRESHMAN YEAR

Alexander C. Wood, Jr., Historian

1898 was a most remarkable and significant year in the history of the American nation. In that year our beloved country gained a glorious victory over the fast failing Kingdom of Spain; in that year she determined to stop being an everyday, easy-going republic and to don the imperial robes; and in that year the Class of 1902 entered Haverford College. It was in several respects a remarkable collection of young men. It was the happy possessor of a "Deacon," a "House-breaker," a regular "hoot mon" Scotchman and a fellow from the uttermost ends of the earth, viz., Los Angeles, Cal., who had traveled the whole width of the nation to get his share of the beneficent influences diffused by dear old Haverford.

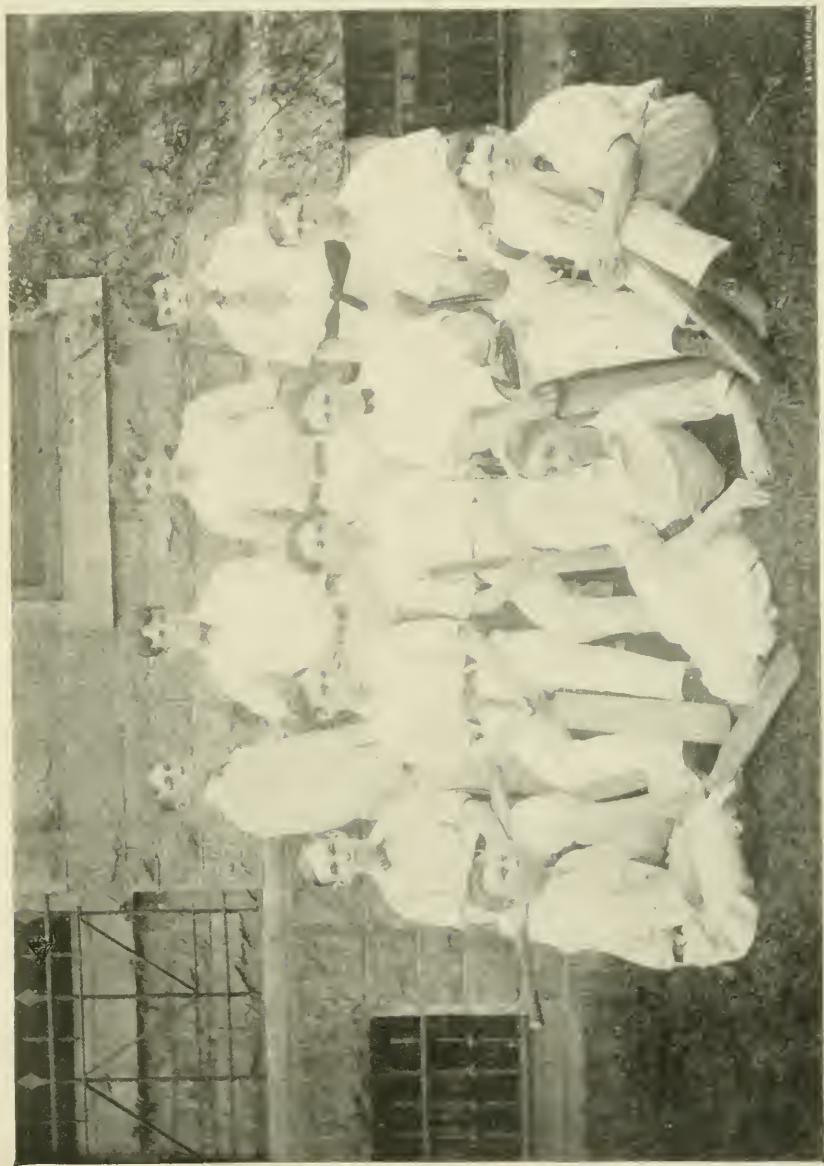

Part of the class appeared on Tuesday, September 27th, and landed in front of Barclay Hall amidst a torrent of trunks, desks, chairs, carpets, and other things of less import, such as books. Its members then proceeded to pick up their belongings and seek out their respective abodes, whence they issued forth in a short time and took stock of their surroundings. They felt rather meek and lonely and homesick, and looked askance at their fellows and at upper-classmen who frowned sternly down at them.

The next day, the first day of college, the class began its athletic career. It sallied forth upon the football field and hurled itself bodily upon the Sophomore Class, and wallowed and struggled in a writhing heap for five minutes, wildly endeavoring to get possession of an innocent cane which lay at the bottom of the pile. It was found, however, when time was called, that the Sophomores had managed to get three more hands on the cane than 1902, and therefore the laurel of victory was theirs. This was not an encouraging start, but our spirits rose somewhat when, in the football game with the Sophomores, which came soon after, our team prevented its opponents from scoring—the especial feature of the game being the superb tackling of Fox, who spoiled many a long run for the enemy.

Now, after having been tendered a most pleasant reception by the Y. M. C. A., and having slipped, fallen and bruised itself sufficiently in that time-honored feature of Barclay Hall athletics known as the "soap slide," the class issued forth in a rather dazed and uncertain state, as a recognized unit in Haverford life.

After the athletic meeting with the Class of 1901, on Founder's Day, on which we will not dwell, since it was disastrous from our point of view, for "Oh what a fall was there my countrymen," the class settled down to the regular routine of college work. It dived into the illimitable depths of conics and algebra, it thrilled at the eloquence of Cicero and struggled over the unpronounceable names of certain muscles of the human body. In addition to these gymnastics, which were in themselves violent exercise, several members of the class were distinguishing themselves on the football field, and after the glorious game with Swarthmore, two of these men, Fox and Chambers, were presented with the much coveted H.

Winter now bound the land with his icy fetters, and from out-door exercise the fellows turned to the cricket shed and the gymnasium. Men of considerable ability were developed in both these places, and in this way the leisure time was passed through the long Winter season up to the dread time of the Mid-Year Examinations. This period of doubt and uncertainty passed safely, however, and the class once more took stock of itself, turned its face forward with renewed hope and longed for Spring.

During this period of waiting the class was favored to win its first trophy through the efforts of the Swedish gymnastic team in the annual gymnasium exhibition. A contest had been arranged between the Swedish teams of 1901 and 1902, and the team representing "our glorious class" under the captaincy of Lane, carried off the prize. Following close after this victory, came the winning of the college championship in that curious but wildly exciting indoor contest which has been given the weird and suggestive name of Bomball. The bright particular star of this team was Captain Grant, who shone brilliantly in all departments of the game and who, when given the ball, seldom failed to score.

So the cold months wore away with their regular round of study, frolic and athletic exercise, until the sun, peeping earlier day by day from behind the hills, told us that milder times were in store.

At last Spring came with all its freshness, and with a sigh of relief the fellows turned for recreation to the open air. A vigorous system of training had been started earlier in the season by the candidates for the field athletic team, and as a result of this the men were physically very fit when they began their outdoor work; and, on March 29th, the relay team of 1902 carried off the honors of that interesting inter-class event, the mile relay race, with almost ridiculous ease, all the men, Reeder, Pyle, Boyer and Hall, gaining considerably in their respective laps. After this encouraging start of the Spring season our athletes placed a never-dying wreath of laurel about the brows of the class, by winning the Annual Spring Athletic Meeting, which glorious achievement is principally due to the splendid work of Hall and Reeder, the former seeming to be a sort of unconquerable genius, carrying off all but one of the events he entered with astonishing ease.

One team has been formed by the class which has not met with the approval of the college in general, and this is of course a baseball team. Cricket is the game at Haverford, and, though it is generally acknowledged that baseball is an excellent sport, nevertheless the effort has been to keep it from growing in popularity with the men of the college. Our baseball team has, however, done very creditable work under the leadership of Captain Grant, up to the latter part of the season, when, sad to say, it met with several very severe reverses.

The class cricket team began the season with a creditable victory over Friends' Select School, and followed this up by defeating the Sophomore team in the first of the series of inter-class games, thus gaining the right to play the Juniors, who had downed the Seniors. This match was lost, we regret to say, by a small margin, and with it went all claims to the College Championship. The team has been a decided credit to the class, however, and we fervently hope its successful career may continue.

We cannot enthuse to any great degree over the scholarship standing of the class. There is one man who invariably gets an A, and another who hovers on the ragged edge between A and B, getting now one, now the other. There is another group which plods along in a B line and feels content, while others alternate between the two succeeding letters. Our professional house-breaker, "Wild Bill," would without doubt stand very high in scholarship honors, did he not find the duties of his calling so arduous that they only admit of an occasional casual glance at a book. Nevertheless the average of the class as a whole is one of which we have no need to be ashamed, and great things are expected from some members in the near future.

During the early part of its career the class, moved by a spirit of organization, elected Longstreth as its temporary Chairman and Cookman and Lane as Secretary and Treasurer, respectively. Later in the year Boyer was elected president. The life of a class treasurer is not a pleasant one, as our worthy member soon discovered, but he stuck bravely to his post until well into the third quarter, when he discovered that he was so worn by the constant labor of collecting class dues, that he was forced to resign, Trout being elected in his stead.

Thus the Class of 1902 has passed the first year of its history at Haverford. There have been dark seasons of discouragement when very little light could be seen ahead, but the class has come through them all and made for itself a record which, though it is by no means unprecedented, may well be called an enviable one. May the banner of 1902 continue to float victoriously, and may she prove herself to be ever a credit to the dear old Scarlet and Black !

The Haverfordian is the only Haverford College journal and hence it has a two fold purpose; it is devoted to the interests of the alumni and to the interests of the undergraduates. It is the aim of the board of editors to make the Haverfordian fulfil these two objects of its existence as satisfactorily to both classes of readers as its limited pages will allow. With this end in view several changes have been made during the past year, and it is the hope of the present editors that still more improvement shall be made during the coming year. Of these changes the most important were the addition of two pages for two new departments. One of these is the Faculty Department, edited by President Sharpless, the other is the Alumni Department, edited by J. M. Steere. These have been unusually attractive and interesting departments and have added materially to the general tone of the Haverfordian. A contemplated innovation is a plan by which the best work in themes for the English department may appear from time to time in the Haverfordian. The details of this plan have not yet been arranged.

An increased number of subscribers during the past year indicates an increased interest in the Haverfordian on the part of the Alumni, and the management of the paper is now able to say confidently that a copy of the Haverfordian reaches almost every Alumnus. Among the undergraduates there has been a lively competition for the prizes offered by the board of editors. These prizes were awarded as follows:

I.—For the best literary article submitted:

Prize of three dollars to R. J. Davis, '99, for his article entitled "The Utility of Independent Political Movements."

II.—For the best story submitted:

Prize of four dollars to E. W. Evans, '02, for his story, "Hereby Hangs a Tale."

III.—For the most work accepted by the Haverfordian:

Prize of five dollars to G. J. Walenta, '01.

"PROFESSORS' ROW"

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

HE department of the Christian Association holds and always will hold a very important position in the life of every college. At Haverford it is true that although little is known of the work of the Association outside of the college itself the part that it plays in the development of a man's character cannot be overestimated, and the influence thus exerted is always for the best.

Few people we fear understand the work and what it means to be an active member of the Christian Association. The Young Men's Christian Association stands for all that is noble and upright in a man, and its fundamental plan is to help those already Christians in their daily life and to aid and strengthen those who are not confirmed Christians to acknowledge Christ as their leaders.

It is by no means a social organization, and the work is carried on exclusively by the students themselves, the officers and leaders in every case being students, though outside speakers are often obtained to interest the members and all who wish to attend the meetings. Every year the grasp that this Association has on the men of the college is increasing, and the men who are most active in the Christian work at college are in almost every case those men who are most influential and active on the football field or in the class-room.

SPOON MEN

LIST OF SPOON-MEN.

One of the most treasured and time-honored customs at Haverford is the presentation of the Spoon, which is a feature of the Class-Day exercises of each succeeding Senior Class. The Spoon is obtained during the early career of the class and is carefully preserved through the four years to be presented to that member of the class held in the highest esteem. The following have been the recipients of the spoon :

1873	HENRY COPE HAINES	1886	WILFRED W. WHITE
1874	JAMES EMLEN	1887	RICHARD J. WHITE
1875	MILES WHITE, JR.	1888	JOSEPH W. SHARP, JR.

THIS Association, composed of the members of the Banjo and Mandolin Clubs, has passed a very successful year. Its aim is to draw together those interested in music in the college, and to bring the college before the public through these men. The loss sustained by the departure of the former leader of the Mandolin Club, H. H. Stuart, 1900, was in part made up by the arrival of some very good musicians in the Freshman Class. Little work could be done during the football season, but by the middle of December the two clubs were practicing regularly two or three times a week. This practice was continued throughout the Winter up to the Spring recess.

The first engagement of the season was at Ardmore, where the Mandolin Club was asked to play an introductory selection and recessional at a lecture given there. The Club also played at the Gymnasium exhibition given at Wayne, and at the Inter-Class contest in the Haverford Gymnasium on February twenty-fourth. The Club performed at the Loganian-Philomathean Debate. Their final engagement was at the West Philadelphia Branch of the Y. M. C. A., where they were enthusiastically received by a large audience.

The Musical Clubs have tried during the year to be a credit to the college, and whatever success they have attained they attribute to the conscientious work of all the members and to the college which has encouraged them.
